

Breakouts and Drop-ins

Breakouts:

Navigating Conversation About Sexuality

We find ourselves in a culture where many people have abandoned traditional understandings of gender and sexuality. As people come to Christ, they come with many questions about this aspect of their lives. In this breakout, we will share how we are seeking to guide people toward honoring God with the choices they make in response to their sexual desires - whether those desires are directed toward the opposite sex or the same sex.

When the Gospel Has Become Boring: The Tempting Use of Politics in the Mission of the Church

Over the last several years we have seen people move in or out of our ministries more and more because of politics. This can be very discouraging - but it can also be very tempting to try to lure or keep people on the weekend by accommodating people's desire for more political stances from the 'pulpit.' Come learn the long history of this trend and how to create a vision that goes beyond political stances. How do we vision our leaders to keep the main thing the main thing? How do we show that the Gospel is more relevant than the evening news? Come join the discussion.
